Alternative Resolution Research Fellow—Restorative Practices

Mentor: Aley Menon and Rachel Russell, Aley is Director of Restorative Practices and Rachel is Assistant Dean of Student Conduct & Community Standards, Restorative Practices

Fellow Title: Alternative Resolution Research Fellow—Restorative Practices

Organization Name: Restorative Practices

Organization Website: We're building a website this summer. In the meantime, you might note: <https://secretary.yale.edu/equity-and-accessibility>

Organization Description:

Restorative Practices is committed to supporting students, faculty and staff in forming, strengthening and repairing relationships.

GPE Fellow Responsibilities:

This fellowship is a joint venture between Restorative Practices and the Yale College Student Conduct & Community Standards Office. Our partnership is borne of an important emerging question on college campuses: how can student conduct offices employ a more restorative approach to their work?

In this role, the fellow will:

- Research policies, procedures and practices at colleges and universities with alternative resolution pathways for addressing student conduct violations;
- Assist in drafting policy language establishing an alternative resolution pathway for conduct violations in Yale College; and
- Assist in revising Yale College conduct regulations to reflect a more restorative ethos rooted in growth, learning and meaningful accountability.

Desired GPE Fellow Qualifications:

We are looking for a student who is self-motivated, organized, collaborative, creative and has excellent research and writing skills. We're also seeking someone who can maintain strict confidentiality and handle sensitive information with discretion and care.

GPE Fellow Learning Objectives:

This is an exciting opportunity for a graduate student interested in engaging in research, writing and institutional policy development in a warm, collaborative work environment.
