Yale’s Graduate School of Arts and Sciences is committed to building and maintaining a supportive and inclusive community where students from diverse backgrounds and varying experiences are supported at all levels. With state-of-the-art research facilities, three spectacular on-campus museums, and one of the largest library systems in the U.S., Yale provides much more than an educational experience; it paves the way for you to realize your unique intellectual, personal, and professional goals. In addition to the advising and academic support you will receive in your individual departments and programs, there are numerous resource offices across the campus with dedicated staff available to guide, educate, and mentor you as you explore and navigate the graduate school experience and plan for your future careers. This brochure is intended to serve as a quick reference to introduce you to some of these resources. We hope you find it useful and look forward to meeting and working with you as you progress along your academic journey.

Visit our website for more information on locations, upcoming events and additional ways these resources can be pivotal in your graduate school success!

http://gsas.yale.edu/resources-students
McGraw Graduate Student Life (GSL) follows and staff organize interactive, fun, and useful co-curricular programs and events at Yale and throughout New Haven. We host over 100 GSL events each year including monthly First Friday at the Grillo Library, weekly Bokk rekis, weekly community service events, activities for international students and students with families, programs for post-physical and mental wellness, and the Annual Winter Ball. GSL events offer you opportunities to meet students from different departments and backgrounds. The McGraw graduate student clubs and groups organize activities, with advice and support from McGraw GSL staff. The McGraw Graduate Student Center you can enjoy free coffee and tea, or use indoor and outdoor spaces to meet with a study group, hang out, eat your lunch, or catch up with other GSL students. You are welcome to connect GSL staff about personal or student life concerns at Yale.

The Graduate Writing Lab (GWL) is committed to expanding the diversity of the student body and to enhancing the intellectual experience of the entire scholarly community. The GWL works collaboratively with departments and programs to support the needs of all students as they pursue graduate study. The following programs and activities fall under the purview of the GWL: advising of incoming and existing graduate students, the Summer Undergraduate Research Fellowship (SURF) Program, the Post-Baccalaureate Research Education Programs, Graduate Student Quizes, Diversity Recruitment Assign, Diversity Orientation Day, Transitions First Year Experience, and the Annual Yale Book Launch Conference on Diversity and Graduate Education. The GWL also organizes and hosts virtual writing workshops and webinars on social justice, diversity development seminars, mentoring workshops on addressing topics such as financial literacy, time and organizational management skills, and strategies for navigating difficult conversations.

McGraw Graduate Student Life (GSL) serves the needs of all students as they pursue graduate study. GSL works collaboratively with departments and programs to support the needs of all students as they pursue graduate study. The following programs and activities fall under the purview of the GSL: advising of prospective and current graduate students, the McGraw Graduate Student Center, the need for free coffee and tea, or use indoor and outdoor spaces to meet with a study group, hang out, eat your lunch, or catch up with other GSL students. You are welcome to contact GSL staff about any personal or student life concerns at Yale.